INVESTIGATION INTO DEATH OF OFFICER STARTS

Statement of Judge Day That Killing Was Accidental is Accepted

DESCRIBES TROUBLE

Defending Wife Against Army Officer When Gun Went Off.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 5.—A triple investigation into the age-old story of platonic friendship, built about the glamor of an army uniform, beauty and sudden wealth, which served as the death trap for Lieut. Colonel Paul Ward Beck, 44 years old, premier army aviator and commandant at Post Field, Fort Sill, Okla., was launched today. Colonel Beck was shot by Judge Day in the latter's home early Tuesday, when he is alleged to have attacked Beck's wife.

The army, through a military court presided over by Major Thomas B. Lanther, the state, acting through Coroner A. W. McWilliams, and the federal government, represented by Millard F. Meadows, prohibition director of Oklahoma, united to sift the ashes of the story of fierce burning rage told by Jean P. Day, 55 years of age, former supreme court judge and millionaire oil man, self admitted slayer of Beck.

Day, with the smoking revolver in his hand, and his wife, her mind a blank in the history of the death scene, according to her statement—are the only eye witnesses to the killing.

Both announced today they would not appear before the triple court of inquiry.

"And we cannot force them to do so," Forrest L. Hughes, prosecuting attorney, said, adding "but that will not keep me from filing proper charges."

Authorities have accepted Judge Day's statement—that the shooting of Beck was accidental and will await the findings of the inquest. Judge Day has not changed his original version of the shooting except to make more emphatic his assertion that his revolver exploded as he was attempting to club Beck over the head with it.

"So help me God, I never meant to kill Beck," Judge Day has declared, again and again.

"Could any red blooded American do anything else than I did when his confidence is violated, his home invaded and his faithful wife attacked and insulted," he continued.

"I loved Beck as a brother," Day said. "He entertained us often at Post Field and had our complete confidence. He could go and come unannounced as he liked, either for dinner or as an overnight guest."

Judge Day said that when he saw his wife struggling in the embrace of Beck he decided to drive the friend who betrayed his friendship out of the house.

He then remembered that army officers often go armed and decided to get his own revolver first. This, Judge Day asserted, was his reason for going upstairs and arming himself before confronting Beck in the living room where he was killed.

"I walked in," said Day, "and Beck looked me in the eye. He was four feet from me."

"You got out of my house," you said, "I told him."

"He pulled back his arm. It may have been for a blow. I thought he might be armed. I thought he jumped in close and brought my pistol down on his head with force. As I did so the impact discharged the weapon. That is the truth."

Coroner McWilliams today named his jury to investigate the killing. The coroner ordered the jury to view Beck's body. The head is almost completely blown away. So far McWilliams has been unable to find the soft nosed bullet which caused death.

McWilliams granted permission for the removal of Beck's body where it will be buried in Arlington cemetery beside the body of his father, Brig. Gen. W. H. Beck, one of the pioneers of Fort Sill. His 77 year old mother with whom he lived at Fort Sill, and his son, Lieut. Paul Beck, Jr., of Watertown arsenal, Watertown, Mass., will accompany the body east. The son telegraphed he was on the way to Oklahoma today. Beck's wife, who was Miss Evelyn Everett of Omaha, Neb., died last August and is buried at Washington.

Mrs. Day is the recognized social leader of Oklahoma City. With her husband she spent last winter in Washington. There she was prominent in the entertainments, being the queen of the Dixie ball—one of Washington's most exclusive social functions.

Although Mr. Balfour recently consented to the acceptance of an earldom, official announcement of which was made through the regular channels, it was learned today that he is now balking, and that Lloyd George is using friendly pressure to urge him to accept.

OHIO OPERATORS ARE UNDECIDED ABOUT MEETING

Invitation From House Labor Committee Is Received.

Columbus, O., April 5.—The invitation from the house labor committee, Washington, to southern Ohio operators, to attend a proposed joint conference, April 10, of operators and union miners officials from the central competitive field with a view to negotiating a new wage scale and ending the national coal strike, was received here today by W. D. McKinney, secretary of the southern Ohio coal exchange.

McKinney announced that he is unable to state what action the members of the association will take relative to the invitation.

Association members are expected to meet here today or tomorrow and frame a reply to the invitation.

That conditions remain quiet and satisfactory throughout the Ohio coal fields is the statement made today at state headquarters here of the Ohio Mine Workers.

Relief work is under way in the various coal fields. Country wide drives for funds to be used to provide food and clothing for needy miners families are being arranged for.

SON OF MILLIONAIRE PITTSBURGH MANUFACTURER TERMED "BLUE BEARD" BY HIS FIRST WIFE IN EAST

New York, April 5.—Exactly seventeen days after he married Ellen Curley McIntyre in Youngstown, last November 28, Joseph Donald Grafton, son of a millionaire Pittsburgh furniture manufacturer, married Peggy Davis, 17 year old dancer in the "Follies" in New York.

This became known when both "wives" produced their marriage certificates here, following a dramatic visit by Mrs. Grafton the first, to the sanitarium where the second Mrs. Grafton lay critically ill.

The two Mrs. Graftons have not met. Mrs. Grafton, the first, told her story to "Peggy's" mother because "Peggy" was too ill to be informed of the marriage mixup.

Grafton met his Youngstown wife when she was a bookkeeper in his father's Pittsburgh office. They were married by B. J. Rosensteel, a Youngstown justice of the peace.

"Don Grafton is a bluebeard," says the first Mrs. Grafton, who believes he has still another wife living in a New England city.

"Every day he was on his honeymoon with Peggy he wrote me the most loving letters. The third day after I married him, I read an advertisement in a weekly publication in which a woman whose name was given asked that Joseph Donald Grafton of Pittsburgh, husband or her daughter, be located as his wife was seriously ill."

"Peggy," Davis, the second wife, is the daughter of Mrs. Capitola P. Laird, her real name being Mary Margaret, Laird.

Columbus, April 5.—Thomas S. Booth has filed suit in common pleas court here seeking to restrain Gov. Davis from signing leases, said to have been submitted by State Highway Director Herrick, for 250 feet of the embankment at Buckeye Lake, Licking county.

FORD HONORS JOHN BURROUGHS

The property has been dedicated as a memorial to the great naturalist and writer. A commission named to purchase the property was unable to raise funds with which to carry out the plans. Ford came to the rescue, purchased the property and presented it to the commission. Here is shown the memorial tablet, which designates the farm as "John Burroughs Forest."

IRISH WARFARE NOW ASSUMES MORE SERIOUS PROPORTIONS

Anticipate General Call to All Citizens of Free State to Arm Themselves for Protection of Country Against Rebel Forces.

Dublin, April 5.—The warfare of the Republicans (the mutineers of the Irish free state troops) against the Irish free state troops is assuming serious proportions. In addition to numerous ambush attacks against the free states, a number of officers and men of the loyal legions have been arrested by the rebels.

It is reported that Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense in the Irish provisional government, and former chief of staff of the Irish republican army, is contemplating a general call to all citizens of the Irish free state to arm themselves for the protection of their country against the rebels.

The mutineers are still seizing and secreting arms and ammunition in various parts of the country, especially in and around ports where the British army is shipping military stores back to England. The Irish provisional government is attempting to stop such seizures but has met with little success.

It is reported from Cork that a considerable quantity of British ammunition was dumped into the sea to prevent seizure by the mutineers.

DISTILLERY GUARD KILLED BY FAKE REVENUE OFFICER

Baltimore, Md., April 5.—Harry Bloucher, 52, a guard at the Gwynn Brook distillery, near Pikesville, Baltimore county, in which there are stored 12,000 barrels of whiskey, was shot and almost instantly killed at the plant early today by a man dressed partly in the uniform of an aviator and posing as an internal revenue officer.

The murderer, who is believed by the police to have been the advance guard of a band of liquor thieves, approached the distillery and as Bloucher opened the door he fired his own revolver at the assistant and it is believed the shot took effect, as marshal of police Stansbury of Baltimore county, while on his way to the distillery noticed a man, in what is thought to be the murderer, apparently being supported by another man in the rear seat of the machine.

PRUGH SAYS BOOM SLOWED UP DUE TO LACK OF FUNDS

Steubenville, O., April 5.—Ohio's building boom, now under way has been slowed up and may be practically stopped, due to inability of prospective home owners to obtain funds for financing home building according to John W. Prugh, Columbus, state superintendent of building and loan institutions, addressing 200 building and loan officials from nine eastern Ohio counties, here yesterday.

Supt. Prugh declared that the unprecedented demand upon building and loan institutions for home loans had diminished their funds for loans despite the fact that these institutions have increased their assets $15,000,000 in past six months. He said the public could not take any more money from these institutions than was deposited in them.

SHOULD BE AWAKE AND ADVERTISE TO BEST ADVANTAGE

BUSINESS—today, in some instances, is timid. But the merchant who is awake, "on-the-job," should not be timid. In other words, he SHOULD be careful, exceedingly so, yet equally as determined. The merchant can, in fact, do much in an advertising way, by showing absolute confidence in his own goods—for, can he expect confidence on the part of the public if he, himself, will not display this confidence by word of mouth, and, on the printed page?

But such advertising MUST not be spasmodic, rather, it should be persistent year after year and this is certain, when business does start to move it will move faster where the field has been educated consistently through newspaper advertising.

CONGRESS WILL AWAIT ANSWER TO INVITATION

Overture for Peace in Coal Industry Sent Operators

RESTS ON ANSWER

Length of Strike Determined by Reply of Owners to Meet April 10

Washington, April 5.—Congress settled down today to await response from coal operators of the country to congressional overtures for a peace meeting with the striking miners.

While the house labor committee conducted its inquiry into conditions which aided in bringing about the existing tie up interest centered in the answer which operators in the central competitive field will make to the committee's telegraphed invitation to them for a conference in Washington on April 10.

Upon the response depends, according to congressional belief, either quick settlement or continuance of what promises to be a protracted shut down of coal mines of the country.

Even in the face of testimony that the operators will not agree to a basic wage scale, country-wide in scope, Chairman Nolan of the house labor committee, is optimistic that the conference, invitation will be accepted.

There is a faint hope among the committee members that the operators in the western Pennsylvania and southern Ohio fields, who so far have remained adamant to pleadings for a conference, will change their attitude although acceptance by the operators of the field is expected to have a salutary influence on them.

Issuance of the conference invitation will determine whether the operators or miners are responsible for refusal to meet.

A congressional effort at settlement of the coal strike, particularly as it involves the bituminous fields, was begun yesterday when Chairman Nolan of the house labor committee was authorized to telegraph invitations to a number of representatives operators and officers of operators' associations in the central competitive coal field to attend a meeting with the miners' union leaders April 10 in Washington and attempt to reach an agreement.

At the same time, Senator Borah took occasion to say in the senate that "drastic public action" might be demanded, and to charge the operators with contract breaking in precipitating the strike.

MARSHALL ENDORSED FOR GREENE COUNTY ELECTIONS BOARD

L. T. Marshall, attorney, and chairman of Greene County Republican Executive Committee, was endorsed for appointment as a member of the board of elections at a meeting held Saturday, it was learned, Wednesday.

The board of elections consists of four members appointed by the Secretary of State, and as the term of T. H. Zell expires, May 1, it becomes necessary for another appointment to be made to succeed him. The endorsement will be sent to the secretary of state.

At the same meeting the committee endorsed H. C. Moorman, Republican of Jamestown, for postmaster of that village. The endorsement was made from three candidates who qualified in the last civil service examination held for the office, three candidates qualifying out of six who took the examination. The other two candidates who qualified were L. S. O'Day, Democrat, who is now serving as postmaster and T. H. Clark.

In endorsing Mr. Moorman, the committee had to change its original endorsement, which was in favor of John Baughn Republican, candidate for the position, but who did not pass the examination and was not certified among the first three under the civil service laws. Congressman S. D. Fess, who had also previously endorsed John Baughn also changed his endorsement after the results were announced, it is said.

Three examinations have been held so far to fill the Jamestown postoffice. When Harry Liguere, Democrat, resigned before his term expired, L. S. O'Day, Democrat, was appointed to succeed him, and since no appointment has been made from any of the examinations held since, his term is still holding over. The last examination was conducted at the same time as the examination for office at Wilberforce which was filled some time ago.

FOUND GUILTY

Brussels, April 5.—M. Joannes betrayer of Edith Cavell, British nurse, was today found guilty and sentenced to death for his act, Miss Cavell was executed by the Germans during their occupation of Belgium on the ground she was a spy and revealed secrets to the allies.

SURFACE ONLY SCRATCHED BY INITIAL SHAKE-UP IN FEDERAL DEPARTMENTS

Republican Leaders Say Move on Foot to Hardingize Huge Washington Machine—Rumors Persist That Something Serious Discovered

Washington, April 5.—The administration's shake up of governmental departments—already severe enough to bring on a sharp partisan conflict in congress—has only scratched the surface of what the administration intends to do to the huge Washington machine, Republican leaders said frankly today.

Beginning quietly some weeks ago the Republican scythe moved slowly into the treasury department, took a sudden spurt last week in the spectacular ousting of thirty chiefs of the bureau of engraving and printing and today is swinging through the internal revenue bureau, the customs service and is soon due in the prohibition unit. All of them come under the treasury department.

While the capital remains a whisper with rumors that the engraving bureau holocaust conceal something more sinister than merely inefficiency, administration leaders headed by President Harding insist it is nothing more than a shake up in the interests of efficiency and for the good of the service.

The "efficiency engineer" in charge of the swinging scythe, is Elmer Dover, some time employee of the Republican national committee, more recently bearer of personal messages between President Harding and President Obregon of Mexico and lately appointed an assistant secretary of the treasury. Dover makes no bones about his mission. "We are going to Hardingize the government, if you like," he informed newspapermen at the White House. "Conditions in some of the departments are appalling and we are going to clean house."

It is the "key" positions in the government service on which administration axes will fall heaviest, it became known today. These are semi executive positions of more or less responsibility and average between $3,000 and $5,000 a year in salary. The Republicans charge that most of these positions are held by Democratic appointees, that they really should not be classed as civil service positions at all and that they are administered with war time laxity.

Already nearly 500 men have been discharged or shifted about in the customs service, 300 in the internal revenue bureau and the scythe has hardly begun to swing according to the Republicans.

FIRST DISORDERS IN COAL DISTRICTS OF W. VIRGINIA COME

Wheeling, W. Va., April 5.—First disorder of the mine strike in the panhandle counties of West Virginia occurred last night at the Hitehan Coal and Coke company mine at Benwood. Extra precautions have been taken to prevent recurrence of trouble. State troops from Elkins and deputy sheriffs are on guard, while Sheriff Hazlett has forbidden the sale of arms and ammunition.

The trouble started last night when some hundred strikers awaited non union men at the mouth of Hitehan mine as they came up from work. The non union men were permitted to pass this first group, who closed in and then a second group of strikers appeared from in front. There was loud argument and blows were struck but no one seriously injured.

Sutton, W. Va., April 5.—Non union coal miners are closing here in sympathy with the strike. Miners of the Cope Creek gas and coal company, Pittsburgh, Franklin Coal company, McKay Coal company and Gilmer Fuel Coal company, were idling today. Miners said they struck in sympathy with union miners at Bower.

ENGLAND DEMANDS EARLY PAYMENT OF ALL DEBTS DUE HER

Nation Will Soon Begin Meeting Obligations Due America

London, April 5.—Great Britain has notified all her debtors among the allied powers that she expects an early effort towards payment of the war loans due her, it was learned today. The British government pointed out that she needs the money to pay her debt to the United States.

It has already been officially indicated that Great Britain will make her first debt payments to the United States. In the autumn the British government will commence the payment of interest on her debt to America and as soon as possible thereafter will begin the payment of the principal.

British treasury officials state that it is not their purpose to press Britain's allies for payment, but that they expect the allied governments to take steps to reduce their foreign debts at the earliest possible moment.

It is understood that Britain will not extend agreements for the deferment of payments.

LEGION STIRRED

Dayton, O., April 5.—Only fifty bonus checks were received by Montgomery county World War veterans in the month of March and none this far this month according to American Legion officials. This is believed to presage a general agreement upon arbitration in all building trades and to prevent early resumption of the largest construction program in years here.

Tremblay's eldest son, Theodore, 18, was hacked to death. Mr. Tremblay and three of his younger sons were so badly injured they were not expected to live.

After striking down his victims with the axe, the murderer set fire to the house and barn. The barn was destroyed but neighbors extinguished the fire in the house after dragging out the dead and unconscious victims.

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

Many women are puzzled, on engaging a new maid, to plan simple menus for her first week. For even an experienced maid when new, should be asked to prepare only simple meals for the first few days, when her mind is taxed with so many instructions concerning the general running of the home. The following set of one week's menus are intended to help the housekeeper who is facing this problem.

Many maids today, ask for Wednesday afternoon off instead of Thursday, so these meals have been planned with that idea in mind; that is, on Wednesday evening the housekeeper, not the maid, prepares the dinner, baking the two lemon pies mentioned (one for that evening, and one for Thursday) and also baking the two veal loaves mentioned (one served cold on Thursday.) In this way, the new maid is not asked to do any pastry-baking or cake baking the first week. On Wednesday evening, too, the housekeeper prepares a double quantity of mashed potatoes so half the amount may be used for lunch on Thursday combined with left-over breakfast bacon. I have not given breakfast menus because in so many homes breakfast seldom varies—consisting chiefly of toast, coffee, cereal and perhaps an egg, bacon or sausage.

Monday: Noon Lunch—Fried Corn meal Mush with Syrup. Cocoa. (If the maid arrives on a Monday, as I have assumed, the housekeeper may have the cold cornmeal mush sliced, ready for her to fry. The housekeeper may also have the gelatine dessert ready for dinner that night—thus making the maid's first day in the kitchen an easy one. Night Dinner: Sunday's Roast of Beef served cold, with pickles, boiled potatoes, spinach, coffee fruit gelatine dessert.

Tuesday: Noon Lunch: Baked Rice Cheese Dish, Tea, Jam (on bread). Night Dinner: Stew made of last odds and ends of the cold roast of beef, combined with onions, carrots and potatoes. Coffee. Rice Pudding.

Wednesday: Noon Lunch: Bread-crumbed Omelet, Tea. Night Dinner: Hot Veal Loaf (make two loaves.) Mashed Potatoes (make double quantity.) Canned Lima Beans. Coffee. Lemon Meringue Pie (make two pies.)

Thursday: Noon Lunch: Fried Bacon-Potato Cakes (or these cakes may be baked in a pan with a little butter under them.) Cocoa, preserves. Night Dinner: Cold Veal Loaf, Boiled Potatoes, Boiled Onions, Coffee, Lemon Pie.

Friday: Noon Lunch: Baked Macaroni-Cheese Dish, Tea, Jelly, Night Dinner: Cod steak with Cream Sauce, White Potatoes, Canned Peas, Coffee, Sliced, sweetened fruit covered with a boiled custard sauce.

Saturday: Noon Lunch: Grape-nuts Baked Dish Cocoa, Jam. Night Dinner: Hamburg Steak meat balls,

CURING A CORN

Corns are merely hard callous bits of skin and their supposed roots exist only in the minds of those who are suffering from them. Pressure or rubbing hardens the normal skin into a horny layer and, to protect itself from injury, Nature adds layer upon layer beneath, all of which pressing upon the nerves of the real skin causes the most intense pain. This is the theory of most chiropodists. There are any number of corn cures on the market which may or may not do away with the corn permanently. Personally, I favor a less rigid method of treating.

The first thing is to soak the foot with the corn in hot soapy water. After 20 minutes the hard yellow skin will swell and soften and can be shaved down with a corn knife or safety razor blade. As much should be shaved off as possible without cutting the living skin. If the toe is sore a few drops of collodion on the spot will relieve the soreness. A small piece of chamois with a tiny hole for ventilation cut in the centre should be bound over the spot and kept there for several days so the shoe will not rub. This should be removed at night and the callous spot rubbed well with vaseline or olive oil.

The entire treatment, of course, will have to be repeated now and then; but if you are careful to keep the callous skin shaved, and if you wear perfectly fitting shoes, even a very obstinate corn should be cured by this simple method. But as few shoes fit perfectly you will probably have to repeat this treatment from time to time.

Sunday: Noon Dinner: Roast Leg of Lamb, Brown Gravy, Boiled Potatoes, Canned String Beans, Canned Peaches topped with Mock Whipped Cream, Coffee.

The housekeeper should write out the recipes for all these dishes and give them to the maid on Monday. The Grape-nuts Baked Dish is made by turning one-half package of Grape-nuts and one quart of sweet milk into a baking dish, adding one-half cup of sugar, and letting bake one hour in a good oven. This is not sweet enough to be a pudding, yet is just sweet enough to be delicious.

Tomorrow—Rosewater.

WINTER SPRING SUMMER FALL

SAVE-install ARCOLA this month - NOW

TODAY, do this one little thing that costs nothing. Pick up the telephone, call your Steamfitter or Plumber and say: "What is the price of ARCOLA with an American Radiator in each room in my house, installed NOW?"

Remember to say, "installed NOW." The NOW is important. The diagram at the top of the page shows why.

The crowd waits until it is cold in the Fall before installing heating equipment; then everybody wants his ARCOLA installed at the same time. You save yourself time, worry and money if you order in the Spring. ARCOLA costs less this month, NOW, than ever before in its history.

Your Steamfitter is waiting for that Telephone Call

Don't hesitate for fear of wasting your Steamfitter's time. He has much more time NOW than he will have next Fall when the rush season starts in. He is waiting for your telephone call; waiting to show you these three great ARCOLA advantages:

1. ARCOLA, installed in one room, is connected by pipes to an American Radiator in every other room. No more cold rooms; no spotty heat.
2. ARCOLA gives the same healthful radiator warmth that florists have in their greenhouses. Dry hot air is bad for flowers and families too.
3. ARCOLA does pay for itself in the fuel it saves. Thousands of owners have proved it.

PRESENT PETITION TO SCHOOL BOARD ASKING TRANSFER

One petition signed by property owners asking permission to transfer from New Jasper Township school district to either Xenia Township district or Silvercreek Township district, has been received by the Greene County Board of Education.

Other petitions signed by property owners on the outskirts of the present New Jasper school district are expected to be presented to the board when it meets Friday afternoon at one o'clock at the office of the County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Aultman. The petition received bears a map of the district showing the territory for which transfer is sought.

The petitions for transfer are the outcome of the school problem in New Jasper Township school district, where voters will cast their ballots April 20, for either a plan of centralization of grade schools and the erection of a new high school carrying an $85,000 bond issue, or a proposition to erect a new high school and leave the grade schools as they are, carrying a bond issue of $80,000. Voters may cast their ballots against both measures if they wish.

If the latter condition results, it will mean that the district must continue to provide transportation for high school students to high schools in either Silvercreek, Xenia or Caesar creek township districts, which with new attendance law in force, means transportation for about 40 children next year. Such a case it is pointed out, will necessitate an increased levy to pay for transportation, which, however, cannot be voted upon until next fall, and the money will not be available until February, 1923, the debt of continuing transportation without funds, piling up in the meantime, it is understood.

Property owners in the meantime foresee a heavier tax burden in any event, resulting in the agitation of a movement among people living in the outskirts, to be transferred from the school district to a district having a high school and providing their own transportation for their children, thus escaping the cost of either building or paying an increased transportation levy.

These property owners must be transferred before the question is voted upon April 20, or "forever hold their peace," it is said, as after that they cannot apply for transfer for thirty years. They are anxious therefore to have their pleas for transfer favorably considered by the board Monday. Although action of the board on the matter cannot be foretold, it is understood that in other places and other counties where transfer has been requested the boards of education rarely deny the request.

In case a number of property owners transfer from the New Jasper school district, the burden in the future will be heavier on those who are less fortunately situated geographically, it is pointed out. The proposition of merging the entire township for school purposes with Xenia, Silvercreek and Caesar creek Townships has been discussed but never acted upon.

GERMANY PROPOSES $100 TAX ON VISITORS.

The conservative German press, torn between an impulse to bar the gates of Germany to her late enemies from America and a desire to profit as much as possible from the American dollars, is urging the Government to impose a head tax of $100 or more upon all American visitors, and apply the proceeds toward the payment of German pensions.

The mythical 300,000 Americans, who, according to a current story, have engaged passage for Germany through one tourist agency alone, are used as a basis of calculation of showing this tax would yield at least $30,000,000 for German pensioners.

The United States, which levies a head tax of $8 upon alien visitors, could not object, it is argued, to a similar imposition, and it would also tend to counteract the increase in the cost of living caused by the invasion of "American locusts" or "foreign leeches" to mention only two of the metaphors applied to American visitors by one writer.

It needs hardly be said this is not the view of the average German business man who bases his hopes of this summer's profits largely upon the purchasing power of the dollariferous Americans, nor of the hotels and health resorts which count upon American clientele to fill the establishments at profitable prices. They oppose any measures which tend to restrict the American invasion.

POWERS' APPROVAL OF PACTS AWAITED.

The readiness of the United States to exchange ratifications of the Arms Conference Treaties, final approval to which was given by the Senate, is expressed in notes going forward from the State Department to the eight nations which participated in the Washington Conference.

The notes will be delivered by American diplomatic officials in Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Japan, China, Portugal and the Netherlands.

State Department officials said the reservation to the Four-Power Treaty would not require anything more than tacit agreement by the other Powers and the consent of those Powers to an exchange of ratifications would be sufficient acquiescence to the reservation.

Whether any reservations attached by foreign Powers will require acceptance by the United States Senate will be decided on the merits of the reservations themselves. It was said at the White House that President Harding did not think a qualified ratification by one of the other signatories necessarily would have to be given Senate approval, but that he would make no final decision until the ratifications were before him.

News dispatches have indicated that several reservations would be proposed as a part of France's ratification of the pacts, but White House officials say the President has no expectation that any will be adopted of such a character as to change the meaning of the treaty texts and thus to call for Senate acceptance.

IRISH FIGHTING AMONG THEMSELVES.

Nothing that has happened in Ireland is more saddening to Ireland's American friends than the outbreak of guerilla warfare on the Ulster border. Irishmen are shooting at each other, burning buildings—destroying bridges. Every bit of destruction adds to the cost and trouble of reconstructing Ireland physically, before Ireland can prosper as Irishmen have long hoped. Every bit of bloodshed adds to the difficulty of that mental and spiritual reconstruction which is Ireland's hardest problem.

A divided country gets nowhere. Moreover, it always invites invasion and foreign domination. It was because the Irish were so divided against themselves that the English were able to keep them so long in subjection. That division also gave the English what little moral justification they professed to have. "If we get out," they have always said, "the Irish would start right away fighting among themselves." And now, with the English actually out, in preparation for the establishment of an Irish Free State, the Irish seem about to fulfill the English prophecy.

Surely the Irish cannot be so blind and reckless as to continue this course. If Ulsterites and South Irish, Catholics and Protestants, Free Staters and bitter-end Republicans are to start fighting each other, there will be nothing left but for the British to come again, with military forces strong enough to compel peace.

HALF-TIME AND HALF-PAY.

It may seem a far cry from geology to coal strikes but the report of the geological survey on the soft coal industry clearly explains a good deal of the coal miners' discontent.

The Survey shows that during the last 30 years the coal miners have lost an average of 93 working days a year. That is bad enough. Suppose the ordinary business man or railroad man or professional man were forced to remain idle, without compensation, three working days out of every ten.

Lately it has been much worse. The mines were shut down 113 working days in 1919, 84 days in 1920 and 138 days in 1921. Last year then, the miners worked only a little more than half time. One week's pay had to be stretched over nearly two weeks.

In such a situation, wage scales obviously cannot be taken at their face value. A miner and his family have to keep on living whether they are working or not. It is the year's income that counts, and the average year's wage of the miners last year was a starvation wage.

This is a fact to be kept in mind as the coal situation becomes a crisis. It does not justify a strike, but it helps to explain the strike, by explaining the mood of the strikers. Hunger does not reason clearly. It is not the higher wages the miners require, but more work per miner—or fewer workers per mine.

The industry is in a badly muddled stage, with no rational adjustment of labor to production, or wages to profits or of profits to prices, and with a huge overhead expense carried through long periods of idleness to be paid for, by the public.

What the coal industry needs is not a labor war, but industrial statesmanship, to revamp the whole business.

Of every 1000 workers engaged in the manufacture of silk and textiles in the United States, more than 600 are women.

While the United States has only one-sixteenth of the population of the world, it has two-thirds of the world's telephones.

THINGS WE ALL CRAVE

It would be interesting to read the replies of a hundred thousand people as to the one thing they most desired. What do you guess it would be?

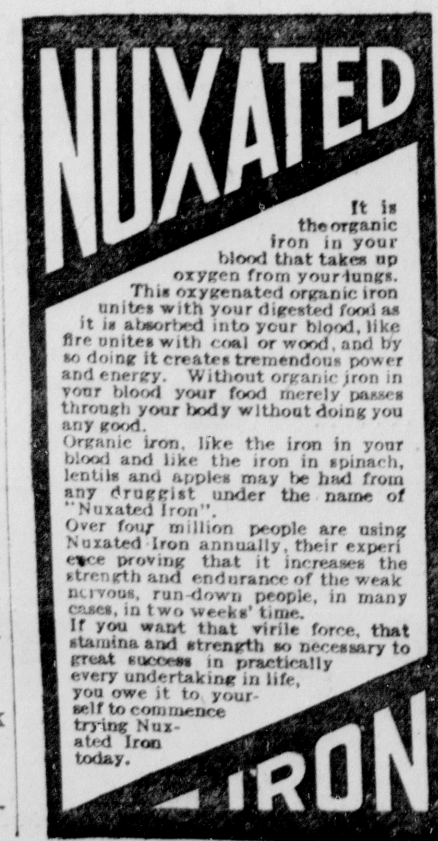

On first thought, you will probably say, "Plenty of money."

But that is not what the majority of people want at all. Money is only one of the essentials, like air and with this exception that you have to work for money whereas water and air are free. Money, however, is only one of the roundabout ways to happiness. It isn't the direct route at all. One of the first things that the human heart craves is respectful recognition. To be looked at, listened to, and associated with on terms of thorough human understanding.

On such a basis only is it possible for love to find its way, for expression to enlarge, and for a man to take his proper place as a leader or dignified follower.

We resent the attributing to us of characteristics and virtues or vices which do not honestly belong to us. We want to be known as we are, without any subtracting or adding to. And we want a chance to be all of which are capable.

It's the simple things that appeal to us—not those full of misleading meanings.

But we want to be applauded when we do a task that is worthy. So that we may do the next one just a little better!

Everyone craves love, understanding and appreciation.

And these great gifts do not come because of money, fame or possession of any kind that is material. They are really—just the human longings of us all.

To get these things that we so much crave, however, I believe that we must make ourselves into receptive personalities—by no means keeping to ourselves that which has enriched us and made us happy.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

THE SLAYERS.

The murderers, in countless scores, are loafing in a hundred jails, all hoping that the prison doors will open when their luck prevails. No doubt they think the law is rank that jails them, even for a time, for pulling off some playful prank like murder, or a kindred crime. In cozy cells the slayers sit; and all around them quiet reigns; red-handed ladies calmly knit, and gory gents make horse-hair chains. They lol around in gilded ease, they labor not, and bear no yoke; we used to hang such birds as these long since, when justice was no joke. But now there's no such doom as that for those who butcher fellow-guys; the gloomy nannan's growing fat for lack of wholesome exercise. The murderers are borne to jail when first their crimes have made us stare, and there's some piffle, flat and stale, about the gallows or the chair. And then we turn our thoughts away, to other grafts, the coin we chase; and on the street, some pleasant day, we meet the killers face to face. They've been paroled or pardoned out, some witness flunked, some juror died; some enterprising legal scout has found a loophole, big and wide. And thus our modern justice runs where it's concerned with slayer skates; they're going now to purchase guns to kill some other delegates.

Beware of Poisonous MEMBER MUSHROOM FAMILY

Beware the deadly mushroom!

Analyze it, scan it, test it, be certain—and then, perhaps, it's best not to eat it. For it is a treacherous foe that masquerades in a coat of creamy velvet, but whose heart is as black as coal, it's said.

Now that the mushroom and its black sheep brother, the toadstool, are rearing their smooth heads in field and vale and backyard plot, Wilmington epicureans are visioning palatable fries and stews. But health officials are sounding a warning.

Only a skilled mycologist can distinguish the edible from the poisonous mushroom. And there are few skilled mycologists. Death occurs within a week after the eating of the deadly one of the species and symptoms appear after a few hours. The same rule applies to the puffball, also a succulent fry. So be sure, take no chances, safety first, is the advice given.—Wilmington News-Journal.

TRYING ON WEDDING GOWN AND ROUND OF PARTIES TOO MUCH FOR BRIDE TO BE; CEREMONY POSTPONED

By PATRICIA DAUGHERTY

On Board the California Limited en route to Chicago, April 5.—Secret telling time when the lights are out and your mother has called "the fourth and last time" to stop your chattering and go to sleep, and you go right on, only in a whisper and tell your chum the rest—why you like the boy next door—what you are going to be when you grow up—everything.

Do you remember—of course you do if you ever were a little girl, and had secrets—and Mary Landon Baker, despite all that has been said and written is just a little girl and every one will admit she has had secrets. And so we lay in her compartment on the California limited and she told them to me.

The lights were on at first and we had gotten into our pajamas—hers were pink silk, trimmed with lace—and she was combing her lovely bobbed hair.

Miss Baker, it will be remembered, left Allister McCormick, son of a Chicago millionaire, "waiting at the church" which was thronged with Chicago society, on the afternoon they were to be wed. She told me the reasons why she failed to appear for the wedding. The wedding was to have taken place on Monday.

"Thursday night before the wedding there was a party for Allister and me at the casino club," she said, "and I just adore dancing so we stayed up pretty late. Then Friday night I gave a dinner party and we had a rehearsal at the church. As if any girl has to be shown how to walk up the aisle on her wedding day—I was awfully tired Saturday morning, but I got up because the dressmakers wanted to try on my dresses.

"I slept all day Sunday. I was so tired and nervous and Allister came over. When he saw I was ill he insisted on postponing the ceremony and I would not think of it, but the next morning, I was so weak and exhausted from all the dressmaker's fittings and the round of parties people gave for us that I could not get up.

"Allister telephoned and again insisted we postpone the ceremony or have it read in my house.

"Nothing doing,"

"Nothing doing, I said, I'm going to be married in church at 4 o'clock but at 3:30 as I went from my bedroom to the drawing room to have my wedding picture made I collapsed—wedding gown, veil, flowers and all; and the next thing I knew it was seven o'clock on January 2 and I wasn't married.

"I collapsed from the strain of fitting on clothes and going to parties all season and that's the only reason I did not marry Allister on Jan. 2."

And so, when Mary Landon Baker learned over and kissed me good night I didn't ask her any more questions—which is unusual for me.

A. & J. Frank, The Brokers Say:

Low priced good stocks present splendid opportunities

Optimistic investors are taking advantage of present low prices on various good stocks, to buy additional shares of companies in which they now have holdings, thereby lowering the per-share-cost of their investment. They have placed their buying orders with the thought that the present low market prices reflect the earning powers rather than the intrinsic values of the securities. They realize that the coming business revival should bring increased earnings and higher market quotations.

THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLAR BOND ISSUE TO BE VOTED ON

Voters of Sugarcreek Township school district, will vote on a proposition of issuing $30,000 worth of additional school bonds to carry out centralization plans, at a special election to be held in the district April 24.

Sugarcreek Township voted favorably on centralization two or three years ago, and at the same time voted an issue of $80,000 worth of bonds to carry out the centralization, including the erection of a new centralized elementary grade school and high school in Bellbrook village.

None of the money was ever spent, however. The board of education hesitated to begin building during the high price period, and waited for better building conditions. Now that it is believed possible to build economically the board believes that extra features must be taken care of by an increased bond issue of $30,000, which if voted favorably upon, will make $110,000 available for the centralization work.

The extra issue of $30,000 will be used in providing for the construction of an auditorium in the building. It is said this feature not having been provided for in the original bond issue, and it is believed that the auditorium is necessary in order to make the school a community center for the district. The extra money will also be used in providing for school buses to take care of transportation of children when the new school is built. Friends of the movement, believe it will pass easily.

George M. Morris, of the state department of education, will give a lantern slide lecture in the Bellbrook Opera House March 19 on centralized schools in Ohio.

The proposed new Bellbrook school will be erected on a ten acre site already secured that will furnish ample playground facilities for the school.

DAILY RADIO DEPARTMENT OF THE GAZETTE AND THE REPUBLICAN

The Way to Connect and Test Your Instruments
By WILLIAM G. H. FINCH
Associate Member Institute Radio Engineers

New York, April 5.—After erecting the aerial and having a good ground connection the next step is to connect the various pieces of apparatus so you will be able to "listen in" on what America's new giant radio is saying.

and it is in reality a miniature radio transmitting station, and thus enables you to test the detector, ascertaining if it is in working condition. Having completed the connections of the buzzer test and placing galena in the detector cup, press the push button intermittently (every five seconds), thus closing and opening the no messages, but prepare yourself to go trouble hunting. Look and see if your aerial is making an accidental ground by touching a part of the roof or some other structure. If so, remedy it. Be sure that all connections are soldered where possible. There may be an open circuit in the coil. Connect one post of buzzer

Take the tuning coil and connect the aerial lead-in wire to the binding post to the left, and connect the ground wire to the binding post on the right. The center binding post of the tuning coil connect to the double binding post of the detector, and the small binding post of the detector connect to the ground. Connect each terminal of the telephone receiver to each binding post of the detector and then connect the condenser across the telephone receivers as shown on the diagram. Make all connections with the wire you have left over from the coil.

Before attempting to receive, it will be necessary to test the piece of galena in order to find the most sensitive spot and for this purpose we will need a buzzer test.

Test Buzzer is Needed
Purchase an ordinary buzzer, one dry cell and a push button and connect as shown in the diagram. If you have an electric door bell bend the hammer back so it will not hit the gong, remove the cover and connect a piece of wire to the vibrator post and from there to the ground, as shown in the diagram.

Deaden the noise of the buzzer as much as possible by covering it or else place it in another room. It is not the noise of the buzzer that does the work, but the vibrator sends out weak electromagnetic (radio) waves buzzer circuit and causing trains of electromagnetic waves (radio) to be sent over the detector circuit corresponding to the pushing of the push button. Move the phosphor bronze wire (cat whisker) over the surface of the galena until you find the most sensitive spot.

Have patience and after a little practice you will have no difficulty in keeping your detector always in adjustment. Do not be deceived when you touch different connections on your set and hear a sound that the detector is in adjustment. When it is in adjustment the signals and music will be fairly sharp and clear.

How to Tune Your Set
Adjusting the telephone receivers to your head, press the buzzer to be sure that the detector is in adjustment and finding it so, take hold of the switch lever on the coil and slowly move back and forth, thereby varying the wave length and by so doing bring it into tune (resonance) with a transmitting station.

There are stations sending all the time, but most of the radio-telephone broadcasting stations transmit between seven and ten o'clock in the evenings. We will publish at an early date a map giving the calls and locations and hours of operation of all the radio-telephone broadcasting stations in the United States.

Do not be disappointed if you hear to one end of coil, the other post of buzzer to one side of battery and connect the other end of coil to the remaining side of battery and if the buzzer operates the coil is all right. Test each tap and coil connection in the same way. If all right each tap should give a buzz, if not, correct the fault.

If you still meet with no success you have overlooked something. Have patience and go over your set again.

THE ORACLE

S. Cahen, Cleveland, O., writes that he is building the radio set described in these columns and that he has been unable to purchase a piece of galena for the detector and wants to know what other crystal would work in the detector stand as described in these columns.

A. Use silicon.
E. Curtiss, Akron, O., wants to know how he may obtain a list of the radio-telephone broadcasting stations. A. Send fifteen cents, P. O. money order, to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., and request a copy of the radio stations of the United States.

M. Busswood, Lakewood, Ohio, asks what are the best detector crystals.
A. Galena and silicon.

DON'T GET UP NIGHTS FOR BLADDER ILLS

Dayton Man Reports Relief With Simple Remedy After Getting Up 15 or 20 Times Each Night

For Two Years
Mr. Julius Mayer, 1330 East Fifth St., says in his own home paper the Dayton News: "For two years my bladder caused me to get up many times at night and too frequent in the day. After taking a few doses of Lithiated Buchu, my bladder works perfectly normal and I can sleep all night."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the kidneys and bladder as Epsom Salts do on the bowels. You will be surprised at the impurities which come from the bladder after taking a few doses of Lithiated Buchu. It is not a patent medicine as the formula is on the package. The tablets cost 2c each. The price makes it possible to place in the formula several high priced drugs, which are useful to give relief. It is not likely that you have ever taken a remedy similar to this. Try a few doses for backache, swelling, scanty or high colored urine and frequent desire at night.

You can see the formula and learn more about Lithiated Buchu at drug stores everywhere, or write The Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, O.

"For over 14 months, I was ill from a mysterious stomach ailment. Finally given up by several doctors and told that there was no help for me. I was returned home. Shortly after my return, having seen an advertisement concerning the benefits others had received from Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules I determined to try them. Within 24 hours I was surprised at the results and before completing the second box I went to work. I can eat anything that I desire." W. E. Hurlburt Ausable, Forks, N. Y.

WELL IS CAUSE OF COURT ACTION IN COMMON PLEAS HERE

A common well between two families is the bone of contention in Yellow Springs that will be fought out in Common Pleas Court according to a petition filed by Margaret A. Bailey against Christian M. Zeller and Verona B. Zeller.

The plaintiff formerly owned two properties adjacent in Yellow Springs and September 28, 1920, sold one of them to the defendants. The well is on the property of the plaintiff and the petition states it was agreed that the defendants should have the use of the well and pay one-third of its upkeep.

The petition further states that it was understood that the defendants should approach the well from the street and the plaintiff erected a wire fence along the property line. She alleges, however, that the defendants, instead of approaching from the street, crossed the plaintiff's property near her bedroom window, so that she has no privacy in her bedroom, have destroyed and cut down the line fence and trespassed on her property, although she has repeatedly requested them not to. The plaintiff asks for a temporary restraining order, to prevent the defendants from destroying the fence and trespassing and a mandatory injunction compelling them to use the front entrance, as well as a permanent injunction. A temporary restraining order was allowed by the court. Marcus Shoup is attorney for the plaintiff.

MIAMI CONSERVANCY CASE AGAINST R. R. AND OTHERS OPENS

Hearing of the case of The Miami Conservancy District against The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Company, The Ohio Farmers' Insurance Company and the City of Dayton, began in Common Pleas Court Tuesday before a jury.

The plaintiff claims it owned a barn, which was rented to The City of Dayton, and covered by fire insurance with The Ohio Farmers' Insurance Company. The barn is alleged to have caught fire from sparks from a Big Pou, railroad engine last summer and burned down with a loss of $2,202.90.

The plaintiff claims this amount due as damages from the railroad company. The insurance company, although named as a defendant, is actually a plaintiff in the action, having paid the amount of the policy carried. The City of Dayton is named in the suit because it rented the barn at the time it was burned.

Five attorneys are arguing the case for different interests in the action. Harry D. Smith, of this city, represents the Ohio Farmers' Insurance Co. O. B. Brown is counsel for The Miami Conservancy District. Attorneys Nevin of Dayton and Murphy, represent the railroad company and John B. Harshman, Dayton city attorney, represents the city.

HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLAR DAMAGE SUIT FILED IN GREENE COUNTY COMMON PLEAS

One of the largest damage suits ever entered in Common Pleas Court here was filed Tuesday when William F. Bayley, of this city, named The Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Company defendant in an action for $100,000 damages.

The plaintiff alleges that November 12, 1918, he was employed by the defendant company and instructed to work on Bridge No. 78, between Morrow and Loveland, and under the direction of his superiors he was building a concrete form for the bridge, which made it necessary for him to be on a 12-foot scaffold.

The plaintiff declares there was a cement floor underneath the scaffold, and that the scaffold was defective, in that it had a board in it with a knot, which caused the scaffold to break and fall. The plaintiff alleges that he was thrown violently to the cement floor below, striking his spine and back on the cement. The plaintiff declares that as a result he is now paralyzed, and unable to feed and clothe himself, and has to be taken care of by an attendant. He avers further that the injury is permanent, and that he will never recover, and is therefore damaged in the sum of $100,000, which he asks in judgment from the railroad company. Attorneys F. L. Johnson and C. L. Darlington are counsel for the plaintiff.

TOM MAKES FRIENDS WITH THE FAMILY CHAPTER 10

They were nice children! Tom thought as they crowded about him after their first shyness had worn off. Uncommonly nice children, considering everything. Jennie was pretty too, not so pretty as Gertie but still pretty. Anna was plain, but her piquant little face was attractive; while sturdy Tim intrigued him greatly, especially after he was told how anxious he was to help so Gertie wouldn't have to do it all.

"She's good. Gertie is! She gives all her money most to ma," he had confided—after the present of a pocket knife such as he never had dreamed existed, a good substantial knife, such a one as a ranchman would be likely to carry.

But it was Mrs. Cummings who interested him most, Gertie's mother. Her conversation illiterate though it was, showed her to be a woman of character. She showed, without realizing it, her anxiety for her children; her desire that they should grow up good.

"After Jennie finishes and Tim is older, we hope to move to a better place," she told Tom. There is bad boys and girls everywhere, but I'm thinkin' if we was to be in a better place the children wouldn't see so much badness. So far they have been all right, thank God!

Tom smiled inwardly. Mrs. Cummings was evidently a religious sort of person according to her views.

She was hospitable too. She made a cup of tea, and gave it to him, and with it some home-made gingerbread not yet cold. Tom ate and drank with delight. What if the cup was thick and the plate had a nick in the edge? That didn't mean anything.

Gertie looked on saying little, but fascinated, happy. Wasn't he the real thing! She wished Lily was there to see, then was glad she wasn't. She might say something about his being her beau or something to embarrass her.

Tom said nothing until the alarm clock on the shelf over the stove told him it was 3 o'clock. Then he proposed they start.

"I'm sorry Gertie has to work on Sundays," Mrs. Cummings said, "but she does. Be sure to get her back."

"I will, Mrs. Cummings, and may I come again before I go home? I shall have to go in a week or two."

"Come as often as you like, Sir." The last slipped out, unconscious tribute.

Gertie hadn't heard her mother's reply. For her the light had gone out. There was a mist before her eyes. She could scarcely see. Going away. In a week or two—the end!

Courageously she pulled herself together. It was nice to see him for maybe two weeks longer. She would be happy—especially today, when he was taking her into the country again.

"Come down to the car with us, Tim," Tom said when Gertie was ready, "I bought some fruit for the children." He added to Mrs. Cummings. His delicate feeling for their poverty had prevented him carrying it up with him.

Delighted Tim followed them down stairs, and out to the car, around which had gathered a crowd of children, among them Lily's brother and two little sisters. Lily would hear all about it now! Gertie thought gladly.

"Here, young man!" Tom pulled out a big basket of fruit; a steamer basket, the best he could find, and the biggest.

"Gee whittiker!" Tim said admiringly.

ly. "Gosh! That's great!" Then at a look from Gertie he remembered his manners and said: "Thank you."

"Do you think you can carry it up stairs?" Tom asked smilingly, as he helped Gertie into the car.

"I'll tell the world I can!" and Tim disappeared inside the door, just as they rolled away.

Tom had glanced up at the window, and waved his hand to Mrs. Cummings and the two younger children, all pressed close to see them drive away.

"You are awful good! giving the children all that lovely fruit. It must have cost a heap!" Gertie said, then blushed because she had said it. Some way it hadn't seemed right—she didn't quite know why—to speak of what it cost.

"I hope they will enjoy it." Tom paid no attention, to her relief. "Perhaps it will console them for taking you away." Then: "You have a wonderful mother. She was kind to give me tea, and that gingerbread! Why, I haven't had any like it since I left my mother's home."

"I'm glad you liked ma."

"Indeed I did! I only hoped she liked me half as well."

"She liked you all right! I know ma. I hope the children didn't bother you, they ain't—" she hesitated. Aint wasn't right, but what word should she use? No use. She couldn't think. So she finished, "used to company."

"I thought them all very nice, and very nicely behaved. You need never be ashamed of any of your family, Gertie sensing her feeling. "Never be ashamed to take anyone to see them."

Tomorrow—A serious Talk.
